THE SULTAN OF SULU.

An Interview.

The Sultan of Sulu was scarcely known until Miss Alies Roosevelt was received by him, and is alliged to have received from him a proposal of marriage. This allegation inspired Mar Jahn Foreman to write the following intercating article to the Evening Mandard :

Sultan Hadji Mohammad Jamajul Kiram claims descent from that valiant Drak Bornes chief Paguian Tindig, who, early in the alleenth condry, conquered the Sulu Archip lago, founded the Sultanate, and opened the way for the introduction therein of the religion of the Great Prophet.

The vultanate, politically regarded as an integral part of the Philippines, came into the possession, or control, of America as & result of the Spanish American was of 1896. Under the old regime this group of about one hundred and forty islands and ulete constituted a vassal domain in the suzuralnty IL EUR WILL OF POPIU

But kingship and rojalty are incompatible with American institutions, and the American policy is to altear these petty rates of their power and gradually bring their territories into political and social uniformity with the rest of the Philippine Archipelago. From the end of the sixteenth century Lup to the present day sulp, or volo, as the Spanished termed it; and the adjacent large Mahommelan island of Mindanao, have been the theatre of intermittent strife. and bloody warfare. Although personally convinced of the superiority of American strength, the Sultan has no power, and perhaps little inclination, to coerce his nominally subordinate chiefs into submission to the Great Republic. When I was staying at the royal regidence of Maybun (Sulu Island), as the Sultan's guest, in 1881, young Mohammad Jamalul Kirum was a youth of about fifteen summers. On his father's death the paniards cited him to Mantia, to receive investiture from the Governor-General in the name of the King of Spain.

But he refused to go there, for tradition had taught him how, in 1750, his illustrious predecessor, Sultan Mahamad Alimudin, had been inveigled to the Spaniards capital, where he was kept a prisoner until the British released him in 1763. The Spaniards thereupon ignored his right of succession, and appointed, in his stead, his uncle, Harns Marrasid. But the Christian hating Moslems point-black refused to accept the infidels' numinee, and a Nationalist Party waged war ao persistently against him that he was obliged to make peace with his nephew, who completently appointed "Uncle Harun" to his vassal Sultanate of Palguan Island. In the meantime blohammad Jamalul Kiram made his pilgrimage to Mecca, and thus secured the title of Hadji, or Knight, to which every pilgrim to that Hely Shrine is entitled. When I called upon his Highness last WITH IMMEDIATE POSSESSION year he was residing on Tulay, an exmural suburb of Jolo town, in a rough built wooden kouse, which had the appearance of an immense picking-case, with so many openings in it for doorways and windows. I was met at the entrance by several of , bis armed liegemen, who escorted methrough the vestibule, practically a rubbish store, to the staircase, I wondered, for the moment, where the stairs led to, but suddenly the lid at the top was raised and, in a minute, I found myself in the royal presence. His Highness was seated in a sofa near the window opening, and after I had made a low bow, a smile and a movement of his hands signified an intimation to approach. Without rising, he graciously shook hands with me, and pointed to a chair op-386 posite. So I seated myself and started the conversation by telling him how, years ago, when he was a little boy, I had been the guest of his father at Maybun. This reminiscence evidently delighted him; if theirs were not broken before, it was now. A smile of delight beamed on the 2010 Sultan's face ; a word from his lips brought his retainers, attired in picturesque brightcoloured costumes, and armed with baronge short swords and daggers into a semicircle around the back of my chair.

His Highness offered me a cigar with his sment the new conditions in his realm. Of course, the American advent was distasteful to him. He felt that his dignity was alighted by the new-comers, who, little by little ware encresching upon his rights by appropriating his valuable pearl fisheries, and seizing the revenues which belonged to him. The Sultan is a short, thick-set man, with small eyes, a slight, bleck moustache, sallow complexion, and his hair cropped as close as scissors would Slip. Clothed in a arong of brilliant has from his toins down. wards, around his shoulders was thrown Jabul. of strip of cotton stuff sawn together at the ends. And as he wared warm on the subject of his grievances, at every gesture the jobul would slide down to his waist, exposing his dusky skin, so that perhaps I really saw more of his Highness than is the privilege of most Europeans.

On taking leave of my royal host he preemted me with his handsome dress-sword and betel-nut cuttor as souvenirs to the "Friend of his honoured father."

The Tulay audience chamber occupies half briefly summed up in bare boards, nondescript bundles, four or five pieces of dilapidated furniture, dirt, and lumber,

But the Maybun Palace, on the opposite coast of the island, is quite a different place. Built bungalow fashion, end covered with an iron roof, it has several Built by R. Duncan & Co., Port Glasgow spacious apartments, which would be allsufficient for the homes of a prosperous European planter.

Here, far away from the inquisitive gaze of the Christian infidel, the Sultan, in company with his seven wives, can alternately pender on the glories of the past in the sanguinary struggles against the Spaniards, and lement his fast-diminishing power under the levelling process American conquest.

In a material sense he is wanting noth: ing; he receives an annual income from the strings of lovely pearls galore; and in the natives' estimation he is wealthy.

But he is the Mujasari, the stainless the spotless who can do no wrong-the lord of life and property, on whose mercy depends all that the world can give within his domain, including the happiness and existence of his Sultanus.

MAIL STEAMER DEPARTURES.

The following table is a chronologically arranged list of mail steamer sailings to Europe; America; Canada, and Australia. Coast ports, Manila, and Japan are not given, for steamers are constantly sailing for those ports. the American steamers call at Japan, and the majority of the Australian boats call at Manila, and, in addition to those vessels, special steamers run there. The departure of every steamer is subject to alteration. The P. & O. mails usually reach London in about 28 days, and the French and German in about 28 or 30 days EUROPEAN MAIL.

But what good does pessimism do to the man who adopts it as a cult? If we really try we can see the good in things with highly interesting if it did not touch so much case as we can see the evil and surely the former is the more for one gracious fellow to nirily say: pleasant subject for contemplation. There are those who subscribe to the theory that our tendencies are born with us and that one man is by disposition sanguine while the other is always on the tenterhooks of apprehenof a prenatal nervousness. This is only another example of the unwholesome reasoning by which men attempt to justify what they know in their hearts is wholly unjustifiable We will not be suspected of irreverence when we say that stripped of all the cloak of words, with which we are won to hide our meaning, what these peoples say in effect is: 'Don't blame me

The Princess Pierre-Napoleon Bona parte died suddenly on Sunday at her Palace in the Avenue d'Tena, just close to the beautiful English church of St George. She was sixty-two years old at her death. Herlife story far exceeds in interest any romance. In the Royal deal with the matter, which is was called Princess Cinderella.

In London the family lived in great poverty, and when the Prince fell ill the Princess took to her old employment of dressmaker, and by working eighteen hours a day for a wholesale firm she made about thirty shillings a week. Then the Prince died, and struggling bravely on, by the assistance of an English clergyman, the Rector of the parish where she lived, she opened a milliners shop in a fashionable part of London. She succeeded, and with regular French frugality she saved enough after some years to return to her beloved Paris. She gave her children the best education she could afford. The daughter, Princess Jennue, met in the South of France the Marquis of Villeneuve, an extremely wealthy man and married him, Her son, Prince The Chairman-At present the lots we appeared to make the application in regard Roland, was lucky enough to meet own number four, some of which are to the debtors estates saying that the rich wound girl who on her marriage rich young girl, who on her marriage Mr Underwood-In last year's report Mr Wakeman (Official Receiver)-I with him, settled nearly £100,000 on his mother, Princess Pierre Napoleon-With this money and her savings she lived in princely style, until her death, and acquired the respect and esteem of all who know her. She sometimes attended th Services at the English Church, alt_ough nominally a Roman Catholic, and was extremely fond of English people. Princess Cinderella will be greatly missed-

There is a good deal of amusement in Paris Society with regard to Miss Alice Roosevelt, the daughter of the United States President. The Parisians canhot understand why Miss Alice should put on such airs.' ANTI-AMERICANISM.

The Lieuchau Massacre.

(From Our Correspondent.)

AMOY, November 20. The news of the Lieuchau massacre has excited the utmost indignation and herror. The Boxer trouble indicated the barbarism which is in the Chinese, but the Lieuchau affair seems the worst we have yet heard of. It is feared that the hatred of the Americans is profound and in some mysterious way has spread throughout the country. Amoy is supposed to be one of the quietest places in the south of China; the Boxer trouble hardly caused a ripple, but at the present time the people are full of resentment against the cruel treatment they allege their countrymen have received at the hands of

Amongst the many special performances givon by the great actor, the late Sir Henry Irving, probably there never have been a The poet has refused the offer, lest more mixed or more memorable audience than that which 'made their appearance before him at the time of the Diamond Jubilee of her late Majesty the Queen in

It will be remembered that some 900 Officers and men representing the various Colonies, were present and took part in the Dismond Jubilee; they were quartered at Chelsea Barracks, and while there Bir Henry invited them to an afternoon performance at the Lycouw. The invitation was eagerly accepted, and at the hour fixed for the performance, the theatre was packmen from Canada, the Australian Colonies, the Gold Coast, and Mauritius, from India, Ceylon, the Straits Settlements, Bornco, Hongkong and many other places. The scene in the theatre with the colours of the various uniforms was a picture of fascinatting interest. The piece selected by Sir Henry for his programme was the story of Waterloo and 'The Bells,' and the spectacle andience rose to their feet, a rost of enthusiastic cheering ewept through the building, while Sir Henry stood, a striking that followed the close of the performance, was one long to be remembered—the whole figure on the stage, bowing his acknowledgments. Silence being restored, Sir Henry, made a short speech in which he referred to the Queen, and the loyalty of the Jubilee. At the close of his remake another round of cheering awaited him, at ment. Evering Dresses: For evening war brocades are coming into favour more and more. Tals should be good news to duollars in Hongkong where such beautiful brocades can bear easily obtained. Given a good il wored design and well blend-d colours there are few materials which look botter for evening wear. I noticed a boautiful frock at the theatre a few nights app, of 'pa'e yellow brocade, trimmed with very old lace, and made in a modified wattegu fashion. The weard was a protty girl with masses of dark heir, which sh had dressed in accordance with the fashion of her costume.

Moire: Moire is also to be fa himabl this winter and I have seen several frock made with a fitting bodice of moire, match ing exactly the accompanyingskirt. Thes frocks were all trimmed with motifs of coloured silk embroidery.

a complete revolution has been wrought in this de-partment of medical science, whilst thousands have been restored to health and happiness who for years previously had been merely dragging out a miserable existence.

Remedy for discharges from the urinary organs, superseding injections, the use of which does irreparable burm by laying the foundation of stricture and other serious discases.

HERAPION NO. 2—A Soversign Remedy for primary and secondary skin exuptions, placerations, pains and swellings of the joints, and all those complaints which mercury and safesparilla are popularly but erroneously supposed to cure. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood and thoroughly aliminates all poisonous matter from the body.

HERAPION NO. 3—A Sovereign vitality, sleeplessness, distante and incapacity for business or pleasure, love of solitude, blushing, indigestion, pains in the back and head, and all those disorders resulting from early error and excess which the faculty so penistently ignore, because so impotent to cure or even relieve.
